

Heart to heart

In the last of the series, animal communicator Pea Horsley connects with a cat called Lily to ensure she's happy at home.

Wondering if her eight-year-old cat Lily is happy at home, Kimberley McCartney turned to Pea for help. Kimberley says: "I'm concerned that Lily worries about me too much and so I'd like to know if there's anything I can do to make her life happier."

Having been given a photo of Lily and just her name, animal communicator Pea established a connection. She says: "Lily is a happy and brave cat who can stand up for herself, but is soft and loving with Kimberley. She has a strong energy, knows her own mind and likes to get her own way. She says Kimberley has an energy problem that restricts her movement, which she called ME, so she is at home a lot."

"Lily pictured low stainless steel saucers and pouch food – she loves food and makes a big fuss of Kimberley, wrapped around her legs when it's feeding time. Lily is free to roam and calls herself a 'wicked huntress'. She showed herself stalking and pouncing. She likes freedom to roam. She also has notably very soft fur and says she's the only cat at home."

Pea went on to ask Lily questions from Kimberley:

Q Are you happy with what I provide in your environment?

"Yes, very much so. More chicken, would be good. And some lamb too. I am not just a biscuit queen!" Pea says: "She is content with what you provide for her, but she did picture freshly-cooked meat. When I asked her about toys Lily said: 'More variety is always good' and she also pictured white litter."

Q Is there anything you'd like me to do that I don't?

"Love yourself more. Accept who you are. Look at me for an example. I am beautiful and wise. Do not cry so much, it is not worth it. Find peace and harmony within yourself."

Q I am concerned you worry a lot, perhaps too much about me when I am ill. I want you to be happy and enjoy being a cat with us.

"I am here to love you. I am a cat. I can do both. You need company when you are down. I am your soulmate."

Q What is your favourite thing?

"I love to be loved."

Q What do you hate?

"I hate a lot of noise and nonsense. Why do people have to be so loud? I like it quiet."

Q Is there anything at all you'd like to communicate to me?

"You know I love, adore, honour and worship you. We are great friends, deep friends. You are my saviour. My hero. I am very happy to be here with you. Value your life."

At the end of the communication Kimberley told us: "I feel quite emotional. Lily's character is so clear and spot on, and there are so many insights about me. I am extremely moved. She knows me so well. The communication has put my mind at rest."

"I was amazed that Pea was able to find out from Lily that I have ME and that I am at home a lot – that is completely correct."

"Pea was also right when she said Lily is a brave cat – she will often tackle bigger prey without any sense of proportion to her size – the kitchen broom when she was a kitten for example! I love the fact that Lily likes to think of herself as a 'wicked huntress' – Lily loves to hide and pounce, indoors and out. We call her the big hunter. Lily loves freedom – she doesn't even like an internal door shut. She loves going outside and has an area she 'patrols' – not limited to our garden!"

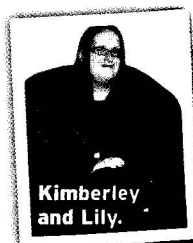

"Pea also pointed out that Lily 'has a strong energy and knows her own mind.' This is so right. Loud noises are certainly a no-no for her – even laughter elicits a glare more often than not."

"She also has very soft fur; everyone comments on this, including the vet!"

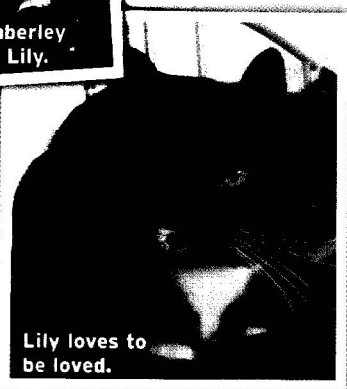

"I didn't give Lily nearly enough credit because I was expecting a reading along the lines of 'I love tuna, I hate going to the vet.' I didn't expect so much of it to be about me."

"When we finished the reading Pea said our relationship might change and now I feel closer to Lily and love her even more, two things which I did not think were possible!"

"The reading has finally given me the courage to be more assertive over my health. I was well on the road to that already but the reading was the final push I needed and I thank both Pea and Lily for that." ■

Kimberley and Lily.

Lily loves to be loved.

"Lily has a strong energy and knows her own mind."

For more information about Pea visit www.animalthoughts.com

